The race for the mayoralty of Greater New York has been watched with great interest in this city. Crowds of old and young men thronged the streets last night, all eager to hear the returns. Louis E. Stoddard, son of Ezekiel G.

Stoddard, was yesterday appointed captain of the Yale second eleven.

On exhibition at Hotchkiss' hardware store in Ansonia, yesterday, was a small branch or bush to which are attached over 1.400 oysters of this year's set, which, if they had been allowed to mature, would have made about three barrels of oysters. The branch lay in a bed and every inch of it is covered with small oysters, making a sight rarely seen except at the shore. It was brought out from New Haven yesterday morning by Engineer Sanford.

The Ansonia Sentinel yesterday says: Mrs. George W. Scobie of Titusville, Fla., started, yesterday noon with her three children for her sunny home on Indian river. They have been north ever since the middle of May. Mrs. Scoble came to New Haven for medical care and was virtually a physiral wreck. She now returns, after a grave operation, sure of restored health Dr. George L. Beardsley has accepted her earnest request to visit her family in January, and he is looking ahead for a delightful outing in the land of fruit

H. H. S. VS. MERIDEN AT YALE FIELD.

The Hillhouse high school and the Meriden high school football teams will meet at the Yale field Saturday, November 6, to play in the semi-finals of the championship series of the Connecticut Interscholastic Football associa-

For several years past the support accorded high school athletics by the people of New Haven has been exceedingly poor. Perhaps this has been caused as much by the weakness of the teams as by the lack of interest shown by the town people. This year, howby the town people. This year, however, there is no reason why more interest should not be manifested, as the Hillhouse team is an exceptionally strong one and, if well supported, may

Much enthusiasm has been aroused In Hillhouse by her signal victory over Waterbury high school last Saturday, and a large attendance is looked for or November 6, as the game between Meriden high school and the local high school will in all probability be the closest fought contest and the best exhibition of football given in this state by scholastic teams for many years. The probable line-up of Hillhouse is as follows: Left end, Benham; left tackle, Hart; left guard, Ferris; center, Adams; right guard, Kaerhle; right tackle, Cowles; right end, Osborn or Kennedy; quarter-back, Morris (captain); right half-back, Noyes; left half-back, R. Hart; full-back, Beecher. The game will be called at 10:30 a. m.

YALESVILLE. Lewis W. Turner, who died yesterday at his home in Yalesville, had been in failing health for a year. He was conscious until near the end, and all the arrangements were made by him for the details of the funeral and other affairs. He was in his eightleth year. His native place was Northfield, this headed by a vicious-looking state. He had resided in Yalesville for upward of thirty-five years. He was widely known as an inventor, and his inventions covered from twenty to twenty-five different articles. His chief invention was the Turner heater, and he is best known throughout the country by that invention. Some five years ago the Bristol Turner Heater company was formed, doing business in Bristol, and in which the deceased was a stockholder. Besides a widow, he leaves four sons and a daughter. The sons are Frederick of Cheshire, Hubert of Milldale, Willis B. and George E. of Yalesville, and the daughter, Mrs. B. F. Loudon of East Center street, Wallingford. Mrs. George Barnes of Waterbury is a sister of the deceased. The funeral will be held from the house on Grove street, in Yalesville, on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the interment being in the Center street cem-

Some of the Remarkable Things Done by Them.

Of their marvelous mathematical precision and ability to count, no doubt can exist in the mind of any one who has ever visited Mandalay, in Upper iting one and will be largely attended. Burmah. There large forests of teak are cultivated by the government for building purposes, and the squared timbers are placed and secured one above another till a raft is formed to float down the Irrawaddy for conveyance to various stations. Elephants do the whole of this work. They convey the enormous loge down to the water's edge and pile them one above another, both lengthwise and across, till a perfect cube is formed. They show an intelligence and interest in their work that seems human, as any eye-witness can affirm whwo has watched an elephant at his loading, and then has seen him move a few paces to one side, in order to judge of the effects of his work. If the appearance of the heap is not quite symmetrical two elephants force the logs one way or the other with their trunks till they get the desired re sult, and the perfect evenness and symmetry of the finished cube is astonishing. They never miscalculate the num-ber required for each cube, and never overweight it. In 1870 a near relative of mine was head of the Indian military olice, and his winter circuit comprised the Looshai country and hill tracts. Herds of wild elephants abounded in the district, which contained two important Keddahs.

The greater part of our tour was made by water and once we were de-tained several days in the bed of a river, through the insufficiency of water for the draft of our boats. Some o them lay high and dry, but the office boat, which consisted of a single cabin with large doors fore and aft, was in the stream. My friend sat in his cabin, absorbed in official correspondence, while we explored the shores. Suddenly looking up, he was dismayed to find a herd of about forty wild elephants gazing steadily at the boat and its soll-tary occupant. Stout soldier as he was, he watched the leader with considerable trepidation, for on his action depended that to be adopted by the herd. To his immense relief, after a trumper or two, the leader turned disdainfully and crossed the stream. He breathed a sigh of relief, and had forgotten his lucky escape in the absorption of work -when, swish! through the cabin came dash after dash of water. On the opposite side stood the leader and his herd, with well-filled trunks. One fater the other administered the shower bath and then retreated, leaving my friend thoroughly ducked and very rueful over the damp condition of his government papers and surroundings, but thankful for his escape from a worse fate than a wetting. The prime minister of Nepal and the court were at that time in holy Hardwar in order to bathe in the sacred Ganges, and perform their pil-grimage to the "Hur Ki Pyree," or "steps to heaven." and for their benefit the elephants were made to go is

Can any child picture a procession o one hundred and fifty tame elephants in single file, headed by Bijli, and with Narain bringing up the rear? It was truly a grand sight. They covered a mile and a quarter of road, and were as orderly as soldiers in a marching regiment. Through the town they marched each beast in its place, in no way disconcerted by the populace or by the screaming children, who joined in sing ing their nursery rhymes at each turn of the road. They think that Gune shin, the god of wisdom, has his existence in an elehant's body, and so they venerate the colossal heast immensely Their little voices, pitched at the high est, send out the couplet:
